We are in the process of providing supplemental responses. We are sure you are aware that your request for production of documents contained 38 requests many of which are redundant, ridiculously overbroad, vague and objectionable. In addition, There would be no point to producing documents at your office for your review, only to have you subsequently insist on having written responses to the discovery requests and copies of the documents.

Mr. Miglio:

Defendant has yet to supplement its non-responsive answers to discovery requests. Before we file a motion to compel, we will accept your offer to inspect documents. In terms of Fed. R. Civ. P.33(d) and 34(b), I request inspection of all documents as specified in our discovery requests. I am available to inspect documents on Wednesday, October 8th or Wednesday, October 15th at 11:00 a.m. A reasonable place would be the offices of Miller Cohen, P.L.C., 600 West Lafayette Blvd, Fourth Floor, Detroit, MI 48226. Please advise if either of those dates will work.

Sincerely,
Ada Verloren

Counsel:

I have reviewed your responses to our discovery requests and they are wholly unacceptable and non-responsive. On my initial review, it does not appear that you fully answered a single interrogatory nor did you provide a single document—not even Ms. Reeser's personnel file. Instead, you rely on general objections. Defendant is obligated to produce information and documents that are reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of relevant information. FED. R. CIV. PRO. 26(b)(1). Defendant cannot refuse to answer and choose to "simply intone [the] familiar litany that the interrogatories are burdensome, oppressive or overly broad." Compagnie Francaise d'Assurance Pour le Commerce Exterieur v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 105 F.R.D. 17, 42 (S.D.N.Y. 1984); Hickman v. Taylor, 329 U.S. 495, 507 (1947). This is inappropriate and delays Plaintiff's discovery efforts.

Unless you plan to supplement by the end of the work week, Plaintiff will file a motion to compel. If you refuse to concur, Plaintiff will seek all reasonable expenses incurred in making the motion, including attorney's fees pursuant to FED. R. CIV. PRO. 37(a)(5).

This constitutes Plaintiff's request for concurrence.
